The Committee had conversations with the former Director of the California Department of Forestry and Fire Protection Ken Pimlott, representatives from PG&E, representatives from the USDA Forest Service Pacific Southwest Region, and Sonoma County staff.

At the next meeting, the Committee will make policy recommendations on RCRC's federal fire suppression strategy, including discussion surrounding H.R. 6903 (McClintock), the National Association of Counties' Proposed Interim Resolution Requesting USFS Rulemaking and the National Environmental Policy Act for Wildland Fire Management is Imperative with Immediate Interim Initial Fire Attack Direction, and USFS Chief Randy Moore's Letter of Intent for Wildfire.

Staci Heaton provided an update on the efforts to conserve 30 percent of the state's lands and coastal waters and 30 percent of the nation's lands and waterways by 2030 under the "30x30" plan. RCRC has participated in several workshops and has filed a comment letter expressing concern on the definition of "conservation" as well as apprehension over the state's neglect in addressing how it plans to work with the federal strategy, local governments, and regional conservation programs that are currently underway. RCRC also expressed concern over the state potentially acquiring more land that are under the state's management, as well as the exclusion of federal lands.

The State Legislature has also held an informational hearing to discuss the 30x30 plan's incomplete nature of the initial draft, the need to address forest land management, and revitalization or restructuring of the Williamson Act program.

Ms. Rhine reminded supervisors that the BOF tabled further discussion in March following stakeholder feedback. At that time, RCRC and a working group of local governments submitted comments urging the BOF to reconsider its approach of the rulemaking process. The BOF has now released the agenda for the upcoming meeting to discuss the Regulations. While language for the revised draft has yet to be released, it is expected to be narrowed down in scope.
