From the Desk of California State Treasurer Fiona Ma, CPA

MARCH 2020

Dear Friends,

Kudos to Governor Newsom for continuing to allocate more funding and incentives for all types of living in California. He underscored his commitment to housing by making it the sole subject of his State of the State address. He is keenly aware of the challenges facing California, including the need for a comprehensive plan dealing with homelessness, the lack of affordable housing for working families, and the urgency to build supportive and adaptive housing for those on fixed incomes, people with disabilities, and seniors so we can age in place.

I am proud to work with Governor Newsom's administration to streamline state processes so that we can accelerate the delivery of an unprecedented $1.75 billion investment in last year's budget to increase housing and $500 million annually for the state's housing tax credit program that is in this year's budget.

In this issue, learn how my office is addressing financial literacy, helping wildfire victims, and how the California Legislative Women's Caucus celebrated the 19th amendment. March is women's history month so let us continue to chart our own course. One way you can begin is by sending in your resume for my registry for women interested in serving on public boards. Women who are interested in being included in the registry are encouraged to contact the State Treasurer's Office (STO) at (916) 652-2995 or WomensRegistry@treasurer.ca.gov.

In Peace & Friendship,

Fiona
California State Treasurer

Treasurer's Youth Investment Summit a Hit with Students and Parents

Every Saturday in February, the STO held its first-ever "Youth Investment Summit" to teach the basics of money management. Thirteen-year-old Rahquel Harris was among the dozens of teens who attended. "I want to get better at spending," she said. "I don't want to spend my money on useless stuff."

Participants learned how to set goals, use budgets, and spend wisely. The sessions were held at Showers of Blessings church in Sacramento. The STO plans to replicate the program around the state.

The Youth Investment Summit was organized by Deputy State Treasurer Jovan Agee, who grew up in a low-income neighborhood in Fresno. He is Treasurer Ma's deputy of housing and economic development. He wants young people to develop the skills they need to succeed as adults.

Deputy Treasurer Agee wants to show young people how to keep their income once they acquire it.

"So many young people in communities like this have no goals. They don't know what to aspire to because they don't see it," he said.

Treasurer Ma attended the sessions and said they were inspiring. "This is why I love my job," she said. "It's all about changing lives, leveling the playing field, and empowering the next generation."

Parent Carlissa Jones said the Youth Investment Summit taught lessons that she herself learned the hard way. "I had to learn later in life how to save and secure my future," she said.

The interactive course was taught by Wells Fargo bankers, using their "You and Your Money Curriculum."

California Tax Credit Allocation Committee (CTCAC)

$100 Million in Housing Tax Credits for Fire Disasters Now Available Through the California Tax Credit Allocation Committee

The California Tax Credit Allocation Committee (CTCAC), chaired by California State Treasurer Fiona Ma, is clarifying its regulations to make certain that 13 counties hit by fire disasters receive $100 million in new federal tax credits.

U.S. Representative Mike Thompson, D-Napa, authored legislation last year designed to provide additional tax credits to Butte, Lake, Los Angeles, Mendocino, Napa, Nevada, Orange, San Diego, Santa Barbara, Shasta, Sonoma, Ventura, and Yuba counties.

“We want to make it crystal clear that these tax credits are going to help counties that have been devastated by disasters,” Treasurer Ma said of the new credits. “I salute the resilience, dedication, and creativity of these communities and I’m glad we can help them rebuild.”

Each year CTCAC oversees the award of millions of dollars in federal and state tax credits that help stimulate the development of more affordable housing across the state. That is the committee’s primary purpose. In 2019, CTCAC awarded about $357.56 million in federal tax credits and $100.75 million in state tax credits, resulting in 21,311 housing units.

The new, additional tax credits are targeted to jumpstart housing developments in areas that in 2017 and 2018 suffered losses attributable to destructive wildfires, including the Camp Fire, the Tubbs Fire, the Thomas Fire, and the Mendocino Complex Fire.

State Senator Mike McGuire, D-Santa Rosa, thanked the Treasurer for her efforts. "This $100 million in tax credits will be a huge shot in the arm for the rebuilding of our communities and desperately needed affordable housing," he said. "We're incredibly grateful to Treasurer Ma for moving so fast and ensuring the tax credits will be spent as intended – in the 13 counties devastated by these massive wildfires."

Rep. Thompson added, "It is critically important that our communities that have been hit hard by wildfires have all of the resources they need to rebuild and recover, which is why I carried legislation to provide $100 million in new federal tax credits to help create much needed affordable housing in disaster-stricken counties. I greatly appreciate Treasurer Ma's commitment to ensuring that this assistance is allocated as Congress intended so that those displaced by wildfires can have access to affordable housing."

In response to public comments, CTCAC is revising its regulations to give projects in the 13 counties two years to seek credits for housing. Under federal regulations the credits must be used within two years or they are lost. The new regulations allow projects seeking to house the homeless to apply for any unused credits at the end of 2021 to avoid losing them.

The revised regulations also would exempt communities hit by disaster from the typical nine percent tax credit rules, which reward projects located close to amenities such as shopping, libraries, and parks.

CTCAC is working to develop regulations to ensure that the disaster areas in large or more affluent counties are not given an unfair advantage over disaster areas in smaller counties or counties with fewer people.

Exceeding State Benchmarks

The California Department of General Services (DGS) awarded the STO and two Boards, Commissions and Authorities (BCAs) overseen by Treasurer Fiona Ma certificates recognizing their successful efforts in exceeding or meeting state contracting benchmarks designed to encourage state agencies to do more business with California Small Businesses (SB), Micro Businesses (MB), and Disabled Veteran Business Enterprises (DVBE).

The STO and the California Tax Credit Allocation Committee (CTCAC) achieved a 30 percent or more SB participation and reached five percent or more DVBE participation, garnering "Notable Achievement" awards at the 20th Annual State Agency Recognition Awards. The state requires that agencies award at least 25 percent of their annual contracting dollars to SBs and MBs, and three percent to DVBEs.

Meanwhile, the STO, CTCAC, and the California Debt Limit Allocation Committee (CDLAC) made the largest increases in their SB or DVBE contract participation rates, receiving "Most Improved" awards.

Note: Each month we will be sharing information on one of our BCAs and explain how the programs behind the acronym are enhancing the lives of Californians all across the state -- and how you, your family, or your business can share in, and contribute to, California's prosperity.

Treasurer Ma applauded the awards, saying her mission is to include families and disabled veterans who own small enterprises in California's prosperity.

The STO and BCAs awarded nearly $3 billion to certified small businesses and certified micro businesses through about 291 contracts in Fiscal Year 2018/19. In the same year, the STO and BCAs awarded $847,296 to certified disabled veteran business enterprises via about 163 contracts.

CEFA NEWS

The College Access Tax Credit Fund Application Period for 2020 is Now Open

The College Access Tax Credit Fund application period for the 2020 taxable year opened March 2, 2020. The fund administrator, the California Educational Facilities Authority (CEFA), provides a tax credit to individual taxpayers, businesses and insurance companies that contribute money to a fund that bolsters financial aid for California's low-income college students.

The tax credit can offset or reduce state taxes borne by an individual, business or insurance company and may count as a charitable deduction for federal tax purposes. The amount of the tax credit is 50 percent of the amount of the cash contribution to the fund.

The application period for the 2020 taxable year runs through January 4, 2021 at 5 p.m. Applications are processed on a first come, first served basis. If tax credits are available CEFA will send the applicant a Notice of Allocation Reservation, as well as a Contribution Submittal Form. In order to receive a College Access Tax Credit Certification, an applicant must submit the cash contribution along with the Contribution Submittal Form within the required timeframe.

For assistance with an application or payment, please call (916) 654-5711.

Heart of the Treasury

Meet the people in the State Treasurer's Office whose public service inspires us and is making a difference.

Meet Rachell Owen-Reinwald, February's STO employee of the month. Rachell has worked for ScholarShare529 as an Associate Program Analyst since 2017. She collaborates with new and existing partners in developing and executing various outreach efforts to bring awareness to and educate California families about the benefits of saving for higher education with ScholarShare529. She has helped bring many new partners into ScholarShare529, including the City of Gardena, which recently collaborated with ScholarShare529 under their workplace savings program.

Rachell also plays an integral role as the lead analyst for the children's savings accounts, helping ScholarShare 529 increase its presence across California. She demonstrates a high level of initiative and her resourcefulness, creativity and positive attitude have earned her the admiration of the entire ScholarShare529 team.

Prior to joining ScholarShare 529, Rachell was involved in educational advocacy at a grass roots level, having formed a 'no cost,' after-school academic enrichment program for young learners.

As the mother of three sons, all of whom are currently attending college, she understands the financial complexities associated with higher learning. She has first-hand experience and knowledge of ScholarShare529, having held 529 accounts for her own children since the inception of the program. In fact, she is currently using these accounts to pay for her sons' academic expenses.

Rachell's oldest son, Trevor, 21, is attending Northern Arizona University on a football scholarship and pursuing a double major in political science and business. Zachary, 20, is attending the University of Nevada Reno and pursuing a double major in accounting and finance, while his twin brother, Gavin is at UC Berkeley on a football scholarship where he is majoring in environmental economics and policy.

Rachell is also celebrating 25 years of marriage this year to Olaf (whom she affectionately refers to as "not the snowman – better").

Congratulations Rachell – on all accounts!

Ask Fiona

Dear Fiona,

I saw on the news that your office sponsored a Youth Investment Summit where teens learned how to be financially successful. What a wonderful and important program! I have two elementary school aged children and worry that they don't appreciate the value of a dollar. I would like to help them understand the importance of money management. Do you have any advice on how I can start to teach them about money?

Sincerely,
Annie

Dear Annie,

Although kids are very technologically savvy these days, many of them are uneducated about money management. Few schools teach financial literacy, so it often falls upon parents to be the teachers of this important topic. Here are a couple of tips to help you get started:

Use everyday opportunities to talk to your children about money. Have conversations with your kids that occur naturally when you encounter real-life situations. Try to use these opportunities to teach your children how to be responsible in spending and saving money.

Make sure you are setting a good example. Kids learn by observing their parents, so it is important that you model good habits when it comes to spending, saving, and investing money.

Getting your kids involved with money doesn't have to be complicated. I'm sure that with your guidance, your children will grow to have financial success early in life.

Sincerely,
Fiona
